

LIMITS OF CONFIDENTIALITY

All materials, including test data and interviews, are held in professional confidence and can be released only by your written permission to persons whom you specifically authorize to receive such information. Exceptions to the rule of confidentiality include those instances that are defined by law, where the life or safety of the individual and/or specifically named others are believed to be genuinely at risk.

Another important exception should be noted: When a person is required to attend the Center as a candidate for ordination by an examining body or is referred by a supervisory authority who requires a report, the Center is obligated to make a report in either written or oral form. Any information shared during the program becomes subject to counselor evaluation and comment.

In no case will a report, in writing or orally, be released until you specifically authorize that release by signing a form which requests that such information be provided to individuals whom you designate.

I have read and understand the limits of confidentiality involved in my program at North Central Ministry Development Center. I expressly understand and agree that no liability of any nature shall attach to North Central Ministry Development Center, or to its staff and employees, in acting upon my requests for the release of confidential information, in accordance with this document.
